Agrotis ypsilon—
larval instars, description, development, and determinations 518–523
Rott., black cutworm, larval instars and feeding of. A. F. Satterthwait 517–530 Alaska, hays, native, harvested at different periods of growth, chemical composition. Ruth G. Capen and J. A. LeClerc 665–668
Alcohol, effect on potato cuttings 480–481
Alfalfa—
antirachitic value, as affected by exposure to sunshine in the curing process. Margaret Cammack Smith and Ian A. Briggs 235–240 curing, effect of exposure to sunshine on—antirachitic value. Margaret Cammack Smith and Ian A. Briggs 235–240 vitamin A content. Margaret Cammack Smith and Ian A. Briggs 229–234 growth under controlled conditions of light and temperature 491–492 hardening, influence of light, temperature, and soil moisture. H. M. Tysdal 483–515 vitamin A content, effect of exposure to sunshine in the curing process. Margaret Cammack Smith and Ian A. Briggs 229–234 wilting, effect on hardening process 508–510 Amino acid—content of chief protein (glycinin) from seeds of several varieties of soybean, differences. Frank A. Csonka and D. Breese Jones 51–55 tobacco plant, accumulation in darkness 261, 263 Anastatus disparis—larval instars, description 32
parasitism on gipsy moth eggs, experiments 25–34

Antirachitic value of alfalfa as affected by exposure to sunshine in curing. Margaret Cammack Smith and Ian A. Briggs 235–240 blossoms, insects collected on in western New York. E. F. Phillips 851–862 infectious variegation. F. C. Bradford and Lloyd Joley 901–908 juice, vitamin C content, study 1041–1043, 104 orchards, pollinating insects, study in western New York 851–862 pollination, relation of insects, study in western New York 851–86[illegible]
Apple—

Apple—Continued Page
products, vitamin C content. C. R. Fellers, M. M. Cleveland, and J. A. Clague 1039–1045 sauce, canned, vitamin C content, study 1043–1044, 1045 trees, spraying—effect on vitamin C content, experiments 1039–1040, 1044
with soap mixtures as spreaders, experiments 179–182 Winesap, vitamin C content as influenced by fertilizers. Myra T. Potter and E. L. Overholser 367–373
Apples—
Baldwin, and apple products, vitamin C content. C. R. Fellers, M. M. Cleveland, and J. A. Clague 1039–1045 constituents, comparison of those grown in Washington and New York 408–410 cuticle, progressive changes during growth and storage. K. S. Markley and Charles E. Sando 403–412 fire blight, pathological and serological studies 95–117 growth and storage, progressive changes in cuticle. K. S. Markley and Charles E. Sando 403–412 stored, effect on vitamin C content, experiments 1041–1044 varietal susceptibility to infectious variegation, studies 903–908 waxlike coating, constituents, comparison in different localities 408–410 Apricots, fresh and dried, vitamin A and C content, effect of cooking on. Agnes Fay Morgan, Anna Field, and P. F. Nichols 841–850
